NOTES FROM PASTOR-

Labor Day, the first Monday in September, is a creation of the labor movement and is dedicated to the social and economic achievements of American workers.

As we celebrate this the only holiday not dedicated to a war, a man, hero, or physical accomplishment we must turn our attention to labor in the Lord's vineyard. We can draw a parallel between the two in respect to the time, energy, accomplishments, and rewards of our labor.

In all endeavors of labor we must commit ourselves to the task before us with all that we have in order to get it done." Once we do that we begin to see the progress as we get more into the job we have chosen. We also begin to reap the rewards, whether they be financial or otherwise, along the way. Once the labor is done we can look back with a sense of accomplishment for a job well done.

I want to be able to "finish my course (labor)" and look back over it like Paul did. I want to hear my boss say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Don't you?
